Afford has also a moral application: nothing affords so great a scope for ridicule as the follies of fashion; religion is the only thing that can afford true consolation and peace of mind in the season of affliction and the hour of death.--Afford also carries with it the idea of deducting from one's property with convenience; there are few so destitute, that they cannot afford something for the relief of others who are more destitute. Crahb. Affront is doubtless contracted from ad frontem stare, to stand front to front. The word affront was employed formerly to denote simply a meeting, face to face; hut it now implies to meet in an hostile manner, to offer an open insult. Aggravate, aggravatio, (gravo, I make heavy,) I make very heavy by adding to. Aggravate is used only in a...
