Excerpt: . . . then the good lady followed her husband, who, douce man, had slowly plodded before her on his way to the wee kirk. By the time she could overtake him he had bestowed his usual nod on the elder, and dropped his usual offering in the plate; when, hurrying after him, she was surprised by a tap on the shoulder from Davie of the plate, who thus addressed her: --Yell excuse me, mem, but theres a black puddin stickin on yere bannet! Sure enough, the unique ornament had dropped upon her head unobserved, and she had carried it through the streets, and was only prevented from displaying it in the eyes of the great congregation by the timely warning of the obliging elder. We are not informed how it was finally disposed of, but we may safely conclude that it found its way to the Bishop Street frying pan, in the capacious side pouch of Mrs. Monteith, and in the goodly company of the newlyintroduced Hymns and spiritual songs agreed upon by the Presbytery of Relief. As the useful life of the good old man drew near its close, like many of the ancient patriarchs he increased in riches and honours. His sons grew up prosperous and respected, and the little church also, that, next to his own family, occupied the largest share of his affectionate regards, was abundantly successful, and a blessing to the inhabitants of the growing Clyde Bank village; and thus surrounded...
